Khun Suwatchai Songwanich also joined in the forum dialogue “Questions on the 13th Five Year Plan - New Opportunities for the Development of Foreign Enterprises in China” and elaborated on the problems of future financial situation in China and development of foreign enterprises in China. He said that the overall financing structure in China has experienced a positive change which could give more opportunities for medium and small-sized enterprises to receive bank financing with the liberalization of interest rate. In the meantime, Khun Suwatchai Songwanich proposed that China may refer to the experience of Thailand to effectively support medium and small-sized enterprises under the help of policy banks, like medium and small-sized banks. Besides, when lending through commercial banks, part of which could be guaranteed by medium and small-sized banks. It could provide security for commercial banks so as to help those enterprises to acquire more loans.

As the first subsidiary bank of Thailand registered in China, Bangkok Bank (China) will continuously provide full support for clients to pursue profit growth and create more opportunities for clients to directly invest in China.
